More than station, power, and sway

Make your home both nest and tasteful,

By surroundings pure and bright:

Shrubs arranged with taste and order

Seek to make your home most lovely,

Flowers, with all their sweet deight.

JOLIET, ILLINOIS, OCTOBER 6, 1863.

Home, Bright and Pleasant. BY ANNIE WELLINGTON. More than building showy mansions-More than dress and fine array-More than domes and lofty steeples-

Bright and pleasant, always fair; Where each heart shall rest contented, Grateful for each beauty there. More than lofty, swelling titles-More than Fashion's 'luring glare-More than Mammon's gilded honors-More than thought can well compare : See that home is made attractive in her blue eyes.

Let it be a smiling cot, Cure and sorrow are forgot: Where the flowers and trees are waving, Birds will sing their sweetest song ; Where the purest thoughts will linger, Confidence and love belong. Make your home a little Eden.

Imitate her smiling bowers: Let a neat and simple cottage Stand among bright trees and flowers, There, what fragrance and what brightness Will each blooming rose display! Here, a simple vine-clad arbor Brightens through each summer day

There each heart will rest contented. Seldom wishing e'er to roam: Or, if roaming, still will cherish Mem'ries of that pleasant home, Such a home makes man the better : Sweet and lasting its control-Home, with bright and pure surroundings, Leaves its impress on the soul.

And now she had come close to him, and he felt ber small arms about his neck, and her head lay on his shoulder, as tender, as confiding as in their days of brightest prosperity - All through the day he had been looking forward to this hour, and shrinking away from it; and once or twice-God drop everything and hurry out there and dark, crumpled sheet of water. But John, in his secret distress, knew that this temptation was the voice of the devil entering God and kept his commandments-he put the temptation aside.

The young husband had not doubted his wife's heart for a moment, but he expected to see her almost stricken to the earth, with the first tidings of the ruin of the house in which he was the heaviest partner. He knew that her youth had been nurtured in all the grace and luxury that wealth confers, and he feared the thought of going out into the chill and darkness of poverty. He had not looked for loud lamentations or bitter reproaches, but he dreaded the silent lears, and the mute despair of the white

'O, thank God! thank God! you were delivered from this evil! I had rather you should go down to your grave without a dollar than have committed this sin,' said Mary Malcolm; and the tears were bright

And afterwards there fell a little silence betwixt these two, husband and wife. It was broken by the latter. She looked up in the man'- face, and her little fingers sifted themselves through the dark hair that had no shocks of gray, and her look, bright, grateful, bring, touched and conveyed a great deal.

'What is it, Mary?' 'I was thinking, John, how much better off to-day I am than thousands of wives throughout the land How many there are who sit in their lonely homes, wearing the slow hours away with hopes and fears for the husbands who have gone to the war, and whose dreams at night are filled with visions of battle-fields, where the one loved | py nation. face lies white and ghastly on the sodden grass, with no hand to offer the last cup of cold water, nor ear to catch the last, low word.
